"WOMEN WITH A PURPOSE"

BY STEPHEN DANER

Stacey Nami, wife of Court Reporter Carl Nami, and their daughter Andrea are the founders of "Women with a Purpose." This is a charitable organization with a unique approach to raising funds and identifying recipients.

Every month, the members of "Women with a Purpose" meet for dinner not only to share a meal but to nominate someone they know who is in need of a helping hand. To attend the dinner meeting, each member donates $10.00 and that money is used for gifting purposes. Since creating the organization, Stacey and Andrea have noticed an increase in membership. They have also noticed a growing demand for assistance and their organization has answered the bell.

"Women with a Purpose" has helped many people, including someone too ill to work and unable to pay their rent and a student who needed financial assistance.

In his inaugural address, President Obama talked about the Spirit of Service, hoping that it would "inhabit us all." Stacey and Andrea have embraced that Spirit of Service, going the extra mile in order to help those less fortunate.
